

Student Voices: How Jennifer used CaliforniaCollege.edu Transcript

Narrator: Student Voices: How Jennifer used CaliforniaColleges.edu.

Jennifer: My name is Jennifer Martinez. I go to East Los Angeles College and my career goal is to become police officer.

Narrator: The website is shown highlighting different aspects available, such as my plan, college career, and financial aid.

Jennifer: I heard about it through my college counselor. She was actually the one who recommended the website when I was looking to move back home, because I had no idea how applying to community colleges work, I needed a lot of help. So the counselor, again, she introduced me to the website. The website makes it really easy to just learn about each college.

Narrator: The college search tool is shown highlighting the different filters available such as college type and programs or majors,

Jennifer: And then it navigates you through the application process. And that's how I was able to really prepare for the application process.

Narrator: Applications can be launched by navigating to College, Launch from CaliforniaColleges.edu, followed by the application choice.

Jennifer: It was nerve wracking and my counselor explained that I was going to get accepted, but it was nerve wracking not knowing what my future was going to look like after. I think it was just like waiting to see if the timing was going to work for me. No one knows you better than yourself, so you know what you need in college. And you know what you're going to need to be successful. I think you have to choose the college based on your needs.
